Warhammer fantasy dark elf name generator

This name generator will give you 10 random names for Dark Elves as part of the Warhammer universe. Dark Elves are one of three followers of elven civilizations and malekith. When Malekith tried and failed to take the Phoenix Throne he and his followers fled to Naggaroth. From dark Elves was a brutal nation with a strong feud against High Elves, but did little to reduce the desire to (re)take Ulthuan. Dark elves names, like all elves' names in the Warhammer universe, are quite melodic in nature. However, unlike wood and high elf names dark elf names are often sinister jingle and there are more harsh tones. There are definitely exceptions, though, but in most cases just as far as names go. Names are usually dark and gloomy, names such as Darkblade and Fellheart or even Dreadbringer are common. To get started, just click the button to generate 10 random names. Don't like names? They are sadistic raids that are brutal and do not like all other races, especially high elves. As a result of this in 3007, we created name generators to reflect them. Click generate names below to create a new list of names for dark elves. This name generator will give you 10 random names for High Elves as part of the Warhammer universe. High elves are a race of ancient powerful magic wielders and powerful armies. As the oldest and most powerful races their works became the stuff of legends and they've made incredible achievements before many younger races were even around. High names of Elves are long and melodic, in some cases this complicates their pronouncement. Male names sometimes begin in Bel. I have not found any information about what it makes, but I imagine that it is the name of the species or another prefix. Similarly, for example, the son of a child is in names like Johnson, but in this case we have a different meaning. High elf names are usually the name, as there are often positive traits, such as quarterback and scholar form. To get started, just click the button to generate 10 random names. Don't like names? Players battle each other with miniatures, which they've probably painted themselves (or just bought from others) and do it on battlefields they can be created by themselves as well. Each group has its own reasons to fight, some do some bad deity glory, others just keep their lands, and some just do it They like to fight. If you are interested in playing Warhammer or if you want to explore this universe further, check out your official website by clicking here. As mentioned, there are many races in the Warhammer universe. I've created 16 name generators for the brightest groups that are the ones you usually play. Some groups have also been divided into separate name generators, such as Orcs and Goblins. Feeling like a burning wizard like a bright wizard? Being raw like a gobbo? Rugged as an Ironbreaker? Blood thirsty like a witch's elf? Don't hesitate to talk like they are here. There's a trick, something I've been using since forever and people have been asking me how. Instead of taking names that have already pre-existed lore, or changing one syllable to another, I put myself on my guideline. Suffix HE: - thril - sil - rion Priesagos DE: - thar - zul - noi Example: Sirathril (HE), Vilhatham (DE), Silanesil (HE), Ezerkzul (DE), Ionarion (HE) & Urzuranol (DE) If they ever implement the choice of foreign letters again eg Á, É, E or U should throw them away again. Who doesn't think a Blackguard named Urzuranol Deathspine looks so cooler? Eidwa kreh nei íshavnnoh íe máe Zerethíðlakar... On the fence about it. Tall elves are basically LoR rips. so easy Serith posts: 8 Post #4 » Mon May 02, 2016 12:22 am unfortunately found a generator that claimed it was a Warhammer one but instead directed to the common Elven name, so I realized they had the same names as High Elves- and so went with a familiar name that I had in other games that Style. But someone, I'll stick to it. Good post! Serithil - Apprentice Khain Velrin - Shadow Warrior of Catholicism198 Posts: 1089 Post #5 » Mon May 02, 2016 9:04 am What rank is your Doc? I rolled my Sorc for 3, or 4, again because I didn't like the name. 3 r7-10s and 1 r17. I think it was worth it. Serithis Posts: 8 Post #6 » Mon May 02, 2016 11:14 pm It's not that far away. level 16 only. His name is not so bad, but not by the usual standards, if 40k names are accurate. I'm not quite sure if Warhammer's naming convention is the same over-and-through of fantasy in 40k works, otherwise that would be my only argument against using the Dark Eldar name generator as a tool to conclude Serithil - Apprentice Khain Velrin - Shadow Warrior catholicism198 Posts: 1089 Post #7 » Tue May 03, 2016 at 10:24 pm No, they're just suggestions. Very, VERY, free guidelines. Some look like a complete gibberish. Mal (Latin blog/wrong) e (from/owned) ith (English family member). So you have a bad family member Mor (Latin dead/death) a (Latin from/to) thi (Latin used, originally ancient Greek for theós or god). So we can do that in the death of the goddess. Lohk (old Irish loch/lake) and (verb of mind italic eo, meaning go) So lake goer, which kinda fits the bill for him is corsair and all. I hope you get the essence of how our much beloved warhammer storywriters may or may not have gotten their names. Lets put this test a little and try it in reverse say we want a cool title cool as nails blackguard? So we are looking for cool pairs of languages: Latin: durus hard, rough, cruel, hard, hard, hard, hard Basque: zail hard, tough, strict Catalan: dur hard, hard, hard and hard and then we do the same nails: Latin: unguis nails, nail, nail, talon, hoof, fang, hook basque: iltze nail, cloves Danish: nagle nail Irish: tairní Now we have some good words that we can try to combine in the name of badass looking * Durustairin (leaving i because it would be the name feel / sound smaller * Itlzedur (looks like a great match with me) etc etc. ofc you can mix it as you like and look for as many defining title words you like and then proceed to reduce them further to meet your needs Hope it was helpful because it was really fun to look and all cheers lobel - SO // Miae - BG // Sorrowstrike - WE // Happyjumping - WL // Ishaisa - Doc Users browsing this forum: No registered users and 0 guests See the following.
